Gus says Sullivan and matadors have a lot in common—both flash red and attract the bull.

Garage proposal disturbs Sullivan

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student Body President Dennis Sullivan probably will be unhappy and upset with himself Thursday afternoon.

By then, the Board of Trustees is expected to have awarded $807,308 in contracts for construction of a 351-space parking garage east of Faner Building near Anthony Hall.

And Sullivan thinks SIU students are being "ripped-off" of their money because of the limited access they will have to the garage.

But he blames himself and student government for not being alert and organized in dealing with the issue.

President Warren W. Brandt said he informed Sullivan Monday that presidential support for the garage would be given at Thursday's trustee meeting in Edwardsville.

Brandt said the referendum results from last week's elections were not significant enough to warrant a change of heart on his part.

With a total of 1,375 votes cast on the question of whether a garage should be built in the student senate elections, 56 percent of those voting said "no." But only 7.2 percent of the student body voted, and Brandt said the low voter turnout does not give the results "the impact they might have had if there were a larger voter turnout."

Sullivan said he is against the parking facility, "but I am not strongly against it."

What he objects to, he said, is the possibility that students will not be able to use it, after student monies helped build the two-tiered garage.

The $807,308 cost of the garage is being met by money collected from parking sticker fees (blue, red and yellow) and parking violations fines, according to Parking and Traffic Committee members.

Sullivan said Brandt has indicated to him that access to the garage may be given to persons buying a special parking sticker priced higher than the blue stickers which are available only to faculty and staff. Or, Sullivan said, Brandt may leave the facility open to blue sticker owners or split the use of the garage to one level for blue, the other level for special sticker holders.

Brandt said he has not considered the question of the facility's access yet. He said that will come later and will be handled by the Parking and Traffic Committee.

But the resolution going before the board Thursday states that the garage, along with expansion of lot 10 and use of lot 2 (both near Anthony Hall), will provide a total of 540 spaces for the 822 faculty and staff who work in Davies Gym, Parkinson Lab, Shryock Auditorium, Anthony Hall, Allyn Building and Faner Hall.

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, told the Faculty Senate recently that anyone and everyone will have access to the garage during special events held in the Student Center, McAndrew Stadium or Shryock Auditorium.

Mager said regular day-time use of the parking facility will be limited to faculty and staff working in the buildings near the garage's site.

Brandt pledges community input in SIU policy making decisions

By Carl Courtneir
Daily Egyptian News Editor

SIU President Warren W. Brandt pledged Tuesday that he will make every effort to involve all concerned elements of the University community in future SIU policy decisions.

"I think we can involve people at all levels," Brandt said at the monthly meeting of the Faculty Senate in the Student Center.

Brandt also said an administrative shakeup may take place soon.

In response to a question from a member of the senate, he said "there's a fair likelihood that a reorganization will take place below the vice president level."

He declined to comment further, saying he did not want to be tied down to anything specific yet.

Brandt said he could not account for past administration policies, but that his administration would move as quickly as possible to identify and correct existing problem areas.

He said his efforts will be directed toward opening lines of communication to the faculty and other constituencies in order to identify such problems.

"I plan to exercise my privilege to sit as a member of the Faculty Senate, thereby opening communications both ways," Brandt told the assembly.

Also in attendance at the meeting was John H. Baker, assistant provost, who, after the meeting, said he has been acting as presidential proxy for most of the last year.

Brandt said that J. Keith Leasure, who recently submitted his resignation as vice president for academic affairs and provost, is likely to remain in that post until July.

"I have asked Dr. Leasure to stay on until his successor can be found," he said. "I think it's in the best interests of all concerned for a good transition."

He said he has found it best to avoid "acting" appointments because such appointments tend to chew a person's career up.

He said his staff is playing with some models in terms of what the composition of the search committee should be. "It's reasonable to assume that the committee will be active soon and conduct a nation-wide search and have somebody by July," Brandt said.

"If they decide to look internally," he added, "you can probably cut two or three months off that."

Brandt was asked whether he is considering adding a vice president for research to his faculty. "I do not want two academic deans," he said. He said he would prefer to have a staff position somewhat above that of an academic dean to coordinate research activities.

"We need a centralized bookkeeping type of figure to keep things coordinated, but beyond that, that's where the Grad Council will determine their goals. We can sit down then and work something out," he said.

"I have discussed this with the Graduate Council, and they will reconstitute a committee to evaluate my preferences in terms of their preferences and report at their next meeting in February," Brandt explained.

He said he would like to be personally appraised of the status of all search committees existing in various departments in the University.

Joann Paine, associate professor in government, raised several questions concerning statements Leasure had reportedly made at a recent meeting of college deans concerning his interpretation of a change in evaluation procedures of faculty members who serve in public service positions on federal, state and local governing bodies and committees.

She said she had heard conflicting reports through channels that Leasure had said that only professional-type service such as in a legal or medical capacity would be recognized for faculty merit purposes.

Paine asked Brandt to clarify what the policy is and explain why the faculty was not consulted on the change in interpretation.

Brandt said he had not been informed of the policy, but that he would look into and address the situation himself. "I don't know why the faculty wasn't consulted," he said.

Eckert declares for mayor

By Dave Ibata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert announced Tuesday his bid for re-election.

"After due consideration and consultation with my family, I have decided to seek a second term as mayor of Carbondale," Eckert said. He may kick off his campaign Jan. 1, he said.

Eckert said he would run partly on his four-year record as mayor, "but I'm primarily concerned in moving ahead in project areas that have just been initiated." He cited the downtown area, traffic congestion and aesthetic goals for the city as areas of concern.

"The key to the future of Carbondale is still economic growth," Eckert continued. "We have to keep pushing for programs that will provide jobs for young people in the area and for those who can't move elsewhere for work."

Eckert is the third person to enter the contest which will come to a head at the primary and general elections in spring, 1975. Richard "Josh" Bragg, SIU student and independent, and Irene Altschuler, Libertarian Alternative, have announced their own candidacies.

Eckert will run on a non-party ticket, he said. The 36-year-old incumbent is chairman of corporate boards at Eckert Orchards Inc. and Eckert Inc., and serves as treasurer of South Pass Products Inc., in Cobden.

First elected as mayor in 1971 from a field of four, Eckert made an unsuccessful bid for Lieutenant Governor in the 1972 primary. He ran on the Dan Walker ticket as a Democrat.

Eckert also taught agricultural economics part-time at SIU between 1965 and 1970.

In what Eckert predicts will be an "exciting" campaign, major issues will include the ICG railroad depression project, the proposed Civic Center complex in downtown Carbondale and the spending of $8.1 million in federal community development funds.

Decency group to meet city council invitation of Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry, Jerry Bryant, group chairman, said Tuesday.

Bryant, named Monday night to head the group which is starting a petition drive aimed at banning massage parlors, topless dancers and pornographic bookstores in Carbondale, said he will bring information on legislation "involving massage parlors" that other cities have passed.

"In case the city council is afraid they can't legally do something or if they get involved in tokenism—which I don't expect—we can show something to prove otherwise," Bryant said.

The city council has ordered city attorney John Womick to prepare for discussion at next Monday's meeting an ordinance that would either regulate or ban the disputed businesses.

Bryant said he contacted the city attorney of Huntsville, Ala., about a "similar court case," in which, according to Bryant, a U.S. circuit court upheld as constitutional a Huntsville ordinance banning massage parlors. The Huntsville, Ala., city attorney reportedly is sending Bryant information about that city's campaign and Bryant said he will forward the material to Womick.

At the Citizens for Decency meeting Monday night, Rev. Ben Glinn, pastor of Lantana Baptist Church, was named group spokesman, Leonard A. DeClue Jr., a Carbondale resident, was named secretary-treasurer, and SIU graduate Stephen Crabtree was appointed legal research chairman for the group.

These officers, along with a petition circulation coordinator yet to be named and 13 volunteers, will make up the group's steering committee, according to DeClue.

The first meeting of the Citizens for Decency steering committee is set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Lantana Baptist Church in Carbondale. The steering committee will act to ratify the working and form of their petition against the massage parlors, dancers, and bookstore, DeClue said.

DeClue said more than $250 was collected Monday night to get the petition drive started. He said he has received names of "about 100" volunteers to work with the petitions but not on the steering committee.

Rev. Glinn said the group would seek enough signatures to bring a referendum to ban the disputed businesses before Carbondale voters, if the city council fails to act on the matter.

City-Community Credit Union lends out total membership fund

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

All of the $1,400 membership fund of the Carbondale-Community Federal Credit Union is on loan to 17 members of the credit union, according to John Hardt, treasurer and manager.

The credit union, located in the student government offices in the Student Center, is a newly formed organization offering membership to any student or resident of Carbondale who is not a member of a credit union.

Hardt said the loans, which range from $30-$200, are personal loans.

He said so far there has been only "one out-and-out rejection" for a loan.

Hardt said loans are offered at a one percent interest rate. If a person borrow $100 then the pay-back interest rate on the loan would be about $6.70 if there are "12 equal installments."

He said a credit committee consisting of "townspeople" meets once a week to decide who should be given loans.

Hardt said he is looking for a person to take over the position of treasurer. He said he is temporarily taking over those duties because the last treasurer recently resigned.

Hardt said he is looking for an accounting or business major to "take over the position."

"It would be an ideal situation for accounting majors to get experience in their fields before they graduate."

Hardt said a seven-member board of directors makes policy for the credit union.

The credit union may move to Woody Hall as part of SIU's plans to relocate some student services on campus.

Hardt said he hopes the change takes place because they will be located next to Student Work and Financial Assistance. Student work offices are in Washington Square.

About 130 people are members of the credit union. Hardt said it costs 25 cents to join the credit union. The fee is non-refundable.

Hardt said members are encouraged to purchase one $5 share in the union.

The credit union was started after the SIU-C employees credit union refused to give student membership, Hardt said.

The credit union hours are Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

F-Senate accepts anti-discrimination report

By Carl Courtner
Daily Egyptian News Editor

The Faculty Senate moved in its monthly meeting Tuesday to insure that possible minority discrimination is eliminated from faculty salary, rank and tenure procedures.

Accepting the report from the Subcommittee on the Equity Model, a quantitative scale designed to insure salary, rank and tenure equity, the senate voted to set up a subcommittee to draw up specific recommendations for changes in the present model system to bring the system closer to achieving its intended purpose.

The report adopted by the senate said the present model does not identify inequities arising out of sex, minority or nepotism discrimination.

The new subcommittee formed on the salary, rank and tenure committee was charged with drawing up recommendations for approval by the senate. Upon senate approval, the subcommittee will meet with the vice president of academic affairs to attempt to implement the recommendations, the senate motion stated.

In other action, the senate delayed action on a motion to change its monthly meetings to a semi-monthly basis until after the governance completes its work on a proposed senate working paper.

Mike Norrington, police-community relations officer, and Sgt. Bob Harris, both of the SIU Security Police, addressed the senate to establish better relations between the police and the faculty.

Harris said that in June the University hired a private firm to study the operations of the campus police and make recommendations for improvement. "It was recommended that the police establish better relations with the faculty and that a full-time officer should be assigned to accomplish that," he said.

"That's why we're here," Harris added.

Norrington said the police would like speak in classes and participate in panel discussions. "If we can add anything to classroom work in any of the areas of police work, please call on us," he said.

He also said faculty are welcome to participate in the "Ride Along-Walk Along" program and accompany uniformed policemen on their beats.

Delays payment to March 27

Spring fee deferment deadline set

Students wishing to defer their spring fees must do so in the Student Life office before 5 p.m. Friday. The office is located in Barracks T-40, between Morris Library and the Faner Building.

Will Travelstead, dean of Student Life, said students wishing fee deferment must come into the office and present their fee code with a substantiated reason for requesting deferral.

Fees may be deferred up until March 27, Travelstead said.

The office will also accept mail-in deferment requests for students not currently on campus. Walk-in deferments will be considered for late registrants Jan. 16, from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., and on Jan. 17 from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m.

to 3 p.m.. Travelstead added.

Students forced to re-register because they missed the Jan. 17 registration deadline will have their deferment requests considered Jan. 20-24 and Jan. 27-31, Travelstead said.

Advance registration, for undergraduate and graduate students, ends Friday, according to Linda Seibert, undergraduate registration supervisor.

Seibert said fees must be paid in person if they are not in by the Jan. 10 mail deadline.

Program changes for spring semester will be handled at central registration, Woody Hall, Jan. 20 to 22, Seibert added. In the past, program changes were handled in the Arena.

She also said registration will not be cancelled for anyone until after the Jan. 17 deadline for fee payment.

Oatmeal industry flourishing

CHICAGO (AP)—More than eight million Americans a year sit down to eat a bowl of hot oatmeal on an average morning—half again as many as eat any other hot or cold cereal—and this number is growing by leaps and bounds. According to an industry spokesman here, the burgeoning consumption of the wholesome cereal is due largely to "its economy compared with other hot breakfast foods and the introduction of convenient, new instant oatmeal varieties and flavors."

Some subpoenaed for trial

Trustees will miss board meeting

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It is uncertain how many persons will attend, but the SIU Board of Trustees will meet for the last time this year Thursday on the Edwardsville campus.

The uncertainty arises because several persons who normally attend board meetings have been subpoenaed to appear in the trial of Danilo Orescanin, former SIU executive vice president.

SIU-E President John W. Rendleman is one of those scheduled to appear as a witness Thursday in Murphysboro, as is Chief of Board Staff James M. Brown. T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, is scheduled to appear in court Wednesday, and plans on attending the trustee meeting Thursday, he said.

Regardless of who shows up, trustees will be considering 26 agenda items ranging from approving construction plans for the parking garage to considering the sale of interest in some University-owned land in Switzerland.

With approval by SIU President Warren W. Brandt, the board is expected to award $807,308 worth of contracts to begin construction of the 351-space garage east of Faner Building.

The proposal notes that the project has been criticized for its $2,000 per space cost, but recommends "that an award be made to the J & L Robinson Development and Construction Co." for general construction and site development totaling $720,700. Plumbing, electrical and lighting work will make up the additional $86,608 cost of the project.

Expected construction time is set at 365 work-days.

The board will also consider disposal of one-third interest in a parcel of land in Switzerland bequeathed to the University for providing scholarships to art students.

The land is owned jointly by SIU, the University of Illinois and the executrix of the Marguerite L. Rickert estate. SIU's share in the parcel has been assessed at $691 by the federal government.

Trustees are also expected to approve the final report of the committee which restructured the SIU System Council. The final draft, ironed out in a four-hour session two weeks ago by four representatives of the 20-member governance committee and the board's three-man executive committee, changes the title of Chief of Board Staff to General Secretary and allows for maximum autonomy of the two campuses in the SIU System.

Related to that report, the board will act on a resolution revising the by-laws of the board's statutes to reflect the restructuring.

In joint SIU-C and SIU-E matters, the board is expected to approve the mission and scope statement and forward the report to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE). The scope statement has been developed in coordination with the IBHE's Master Plan—Phase IV. It outlines goals for the University for the future, such as a continuation of "high quality programs of instruction, research and public service."

Trustees are scheduled to hear a legislative report from staff chief Brown and a report on the Mississippi River Festival from Rendleman.

The board meeting will begin at 11 a.m. in the University Center Ballroom following a 9 a.m. executive session.

Library to install mechanism to foil 'inconsiderate' thieves

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students will have more difficulty stealing books from Morris Library.

If the schedules of IBM, the Physical Plant, and Morris Library are followed, an electronic device detecting book and material theft will be operating at both main entrances of the library, according to Sidney E. Matthews, assistant director of the Library.

Matthews said the $48,000 system is being installed in the library because students are "so inconsiderate of their fellow students."

Matthews said all books in Morris Library will be "processed" by the IBM company with "tattle-tape."

Matthews displayed three books that had been "processed." There were no

Kumquats and pineapple are good after Chinese meal

Mix preserved kumquats with pineapple chunks and serve as the ending for a Chinese supper.

visible markings on the book to give a clue to what Matthews called "IBM's secrets."

Whenever a student fails to check out materials brought through the turnstyle, the electronic device will sound and the student will be stopped by checkers at the door, Matthews said.

Matthews said the Physical Plant must first rewire parts of the library before two IBM electrical engineers can install the turnstiles. He said there may be a "problem because these floors are 18 inches thick and the system has to be grounded to the ground."

Matthews said the IBM system was chosen after a library committee consulted with officials at "major university libraries, the School of Engineering and Technology, and representatives from electronics companies."

The committee made recommendations to J. Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost. Funds for the system came from the president's Academic Excellence Fund, Matthews said.

Matthews said there still will be checkers at the door because when "a person is stopped someone has to be there to handle the situation."

Matthews said the library does not have figures on how much material is stolen from the library but theft is "heavy" in the undergraduate library and the science sections.

Inmate plans career in corrections work

Editor's note: This is the last in a series of articles on one man's road to rehabilitate himself and overcome prison existence.

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Sam Hill, administration of justice major, has a particularly good insight into the state's prison system. He has been an inmate since 1966 when he was convicted of murder.

When he is released, Hill plans to get a job in the Illinois Department of Corrections. "There are a lot of things to be straightened out," Hill said.

While serving part of his more than six year stint in Statesville Penitentiary, Hill entered an educational-release program where qualified men receive an education while incarcerated.

Hill said he appreciates the education he has received and is still receiving as a resident in Carbondale's House of Glass. "But, there are problems."

Hill said penal institutions around the state don't have sufficient educational or vocational programs.

"I would like to see men who qualify be allowed to enter college on the streets," he said.

He said current educational programs offer only social studies, such as administration of justice and social welfare. He said areas such as medicine, law or science are not available. "I believe the department is missing the boat in not tapping some of the talent that's in there," Hill added.

Hill said private industry can help finance these programs because some men would work for the companies following their release. "Because of great restrictions and public unawareness, a lot of men are suffering."

Hill mentioned a program currently used in some Illinois prisons which he feels is a "great boost to education of these men."

The "Labauck" program is involved with one-to-one tutoring. Many inmates cannot read or write and are embarrassed to enter a classroom situation, Hill said.

Hill, who helped initiate the program at Statesville, said "Labauck helps rescue a lot of men who otherwise would receive no education."

Hill said another problem is shortage of materials. "It might take months for books to come in and inmates have no other place to go."

Hill also spoke of the irregularity of educational services for those inmates lucky enough to be in the program.

"If the head count shows a man to be missing, nothing moves until that man is found," Hill said, noting it may take hours to locate the man, and precious time is wasted.

"There are a number of things that pull men out of the classroom. There is no organization and no planning. If a man is lucky he may get 10 hours of class a week," he said.

He also said there isn't enough outside-help for inmates to master their studies. "When I came in, I had a very low level of education. I had to struggle and get as much as I could through guesswork."

"The vocational programs are just as bad. Nobody learns a trade he can use on the outside. The best bet for a man is to get on maintenance. There he can learn how to fix things, get good, practical experience," he said.

British value garbage

LONDON (AP)—The British government has started a campaign to turn garbage into a multi-million-pound asset.

The nation's garbage cans may hold one of Britain's most precious untapped resources, says a government discussion paper, "War on Waste."

The paper says that "if it were possible to separate the different components of the waste they could be worth hundreds of millions of pounds as raw materials for industry."

The government is to promote a national effort, with big publicity, to conserve and reclaim scarce resources.

Even old tin cans, 750,000 tons of which are dumped in Britain each year, will come under scrutiny.

The paper says "The Government is sponsoring research on the collection and treatment of tin cans, the British Steel Corporation is looking at ways of using them, and some firms are planning recovery plants."

Fry prejudiced

SIU students, along with justice, are being taken for a ride by Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry.

This ride is coming in the form of the plans for hearings of student grievances in relation to the recent street disturbances.

In the Nov. 20 edition of the Daily Egyptian, Fry was quoted, stating that if the SIU students arrested during the disturbances come to his office they will be granted a hearing to determine if the police officers involved acted wrongly.

This complaint procedure as described by Fry will follow these lines: after a person presents a grievance to him he will take disciplinary action against any policemen involved, if warranted.

This would be an acceptable procedure if that was all there was to it. But that isn't all there is.

Fry has already criticized the accusations of police mishandling before any complaints have been aired. Fry was again quoted in the same Nov. 20 article: "To me it sounded like the mewlings of a spoiled child who had been reprimanded."

It seems Fry has already made up his mind as to the validity of any student accusations brought to his attention in this matter. His statements smack of bias. A man who has clearly demonstrated his views against these students should not be allowed to sit in judgement of them.

The city should not continue to waste the taxpayers money on Fry's plan and continue with this facade masquerading under supposed justice.

Life isn't too bad, considering...

By Bruce Hackel
Student Writer

In keeping with the spirit of the holiday season, I propose an antonym to Murphy's Law.

Enter Everyone's Law: In today's world fraught with problems of pollution, inflation, population, and communication—it's amazing so many things go right!

The pessimism espoused by Murphy's Law (If anything can go wrong—it will), sums up the attitude many have adopted from living their daily lives. It has some basis because events in our lives do have a tendency to turn out differently than we expect. But counting on things to turn out a particular way is one of the surest paths to disappointment. Perhaps one solution lies in flexibility, a kind of healthy pessimism.

At some time during the 26 days separating Thanksgiving and Christmas, people often pause to reflect on past and future events. These relaxing periods spent with friends and family are characterized by a departure from everyday ways of looking at things. Partly due to the security of friends and family, and partly because of feelings of warmth and mellow induced by holiday wines and liquors, hardened attitudes soften, and pessimism is replaced by optimism.

Consider for a moment the number of times the car does start in the morning, or how often that vending machine does spit out a can of pop, even if it does cost a quarter. When you push the elevator button, you get an elevator. You flip a lightswitch, you get light. You dial the phone, and you're talking to your brother in California. You mail a letter overseas, and it arrives just a few days later.

Viewpoint

Now they get a little tougher.

You register for classes and receive a schedule with no problems or conflicts. You get pulled over for speeding, and the officer lets you go with a warning. You forget to bring enough cash to a store, and they accept a check. You've got four bald tires on your old Ford, and you drive all the way to Chicago without a flat. The country's President is crooked, along with many others, and they are caught.

Americans have grown so accustomed to the ease and convenience of the 21st Century, that the minority of events which don't work out take priority in our minds. We easily forget how well things work for the most part, and choose instead to dwell on those that do not.

For every crooked politician there is an honest one. For every incompetent teacher there is one who takes a sincere interest in his students. For every corrupt policeman there is one who will let you slide for a minor offense. For every rotten apple in the world there is an unblemished one.

An alternative to pessimism is part of the message of Thomas A. Harris, the author of "I'm OK—You're OK." His contention is simply that the healthiest outlook people can have with themselves, and each other, is one of mutual acceptance. This view can be extended to people's daily lives and events, resulting in a more positive outlook in general.

With this in mind, and in keeping with the holiday spirit, I propose we adopt Everybody's Law. With so many people and problems in our fast-paced society, it's amazing so many things go right!

Don't expect anything unusual from the Democrats

By Charles G. Stalon

Fifth of series of articles on inflation.

(Stalon is an associate professor in the SIU Department of Economics.)

It is risky to forecast the Democrats' policies towards inflation when there is so little agreement in the party on this issue. Still, until the situation gets desperate, one ought not to expect anything unusual from them.

Two forces are at work which will likely drive the Democrats to advocate a system of detailed controls in the economy: 1) the strong public support for controls and the lack of any generally acceptable alternatives in the party, 2) the Democrats have traditionally been less respectful of the role of relative prices in gaining and maintaining allocational efficiency and far more worried about the effects of relative prices on income distribution than Republicans.

With little hesitation, it can be sadly predicted that controls of the type tried in the past will not produce significant gains, and they may do great harm. Controls will be a disappointment for three reasons:

1) The political compromises necessary to get them established will cause the controls to be imposed on many sectors of the economy for which controls are unsuitable, such as competitive sectors and small business sectors, e.g., rent controls and interest controls. This will lead the control board to squander its limited resources trying to regulate organizations other than the top 2,000 firms and 500 unions which need regulation. This will lead the board into policies which will create shortages, queues, and an angry public.

2) The board will be under great pressure to stabilize individual prices. Much of the public will declare each price increase a sign of failure. If the board responds to such pressure, it will create a dysfunctional set of relative prices and widespread shortages, queues, and an angry public. If it resists such pressures it will be forced to tolerate large increases in petroleum and food prices and product prices in commodities using them. This will in turn create great pressures for wage increases to match. If the wage increases are granted, the board will have converted the petroleum-induced inflation into a push inflation and compounded the problem. If the wage pressures are resisted, the board would, in effect, be using its powers to execute the Ford policy.

3) The board must be lodged with the administration and the administration has no enthusiasm for such controls, unless they can be used as a cover to gain public tolerance for the basic Ford program.

Democrats should also be expected to expand Ford's public employment programs, but these programs are designed to ease the pain of the anti-inflation fight. They are consistent with several programs.

We should also expect to see various tax "reforms" implemented to place somewhat heavier taxes on resource owners and lighter ones on low-income workers. While such changes can be defended on equity grounds, they will do little to restrain inflation.

In summary, a plausible forecast is that the Democrats will create the image of vigor by imposing controls; the controls will do little good and some harm; the inflation will recede slowly due to the serious recession, and the Democrats will claim credit for the gain and attribute the recession to Nixon-Ford. That is, if we are lucky.

If we are not lucky, the recession, the inflation and the trade deficits to pay for oil will cause a further breakdown in the international system and convert the recession into a serious depression. Faced with this potential, both the Congress and the Administration may begin a search for desperation policies. In that case we may well see social and economic experimentation rivaling the New Deal.

Decency on the warpath

To the Daily Egyptian:

Heaven save us! The "Decent Citizens" are on the warpath again. They haven't been out of the woodwork since they were scandalized by streaking. And their reasoning is as logical now as it was then. Rev. Ben Glinn says that Carbondale's massage parlors are really "houses of sin".

He wouldn't oppose the parlors if there were only men giving massages. I really don't think that would be the solution he'd like, if he considered the implications of man to man locals. It was always my impression that while the "Decent Citizens" considered sex to be an abomination, they rated homosexuality somewhere worse than eternal damnation. I have confidence that the reverend will realize his oversight and think up another solution, like restricting the massageable area to above the shoulders and below the ankles.

Jerry Bryant makes sense, too. He considers the parlors "an amoral activity". Obviously, it is the place of "Decent Citizens" to prevent anyone from indulging in any activity they consider "amoral". Bryant also has an interesting opinion of the theories of a sex therapist—"Baloney". The opinion of a professional therapist is obviously of no value because he's only a professional therapist. One trademark of "Decent People" everywhere is that they always know better than any professional person because their nose is stuck in a bible all day. Ignorance is bliss. I wonder if "Jane" or any other woman who has been sexually assaulted would have preferred to have her attacker's sex drive satisfied in a massage parlor instead of being raped. The "Decent Citizens" wouldn't stand for that.

Politics, not sugar

To the Daily Egyptian:

The editorial on sugar (Daily Egyptian Dec. 7) is an insult to anyone having had more than high school biology or chemistry. I am assuming that Gary Delsohn misinterpreted John Yudkin's results because the research, as presented, is erroneous, ridiculous, and nothing a "renowned researcher" would even admit publishing, let alone present as valid research results.

1) Glucose is one of the most vital sources of biological energy for the human body and is used extensively as an intravenous treatment by the medical profession.

2) Refined sugar is sucrose, not glucose, and as such is 1-D-glucopyranosyl-β-fructofuranoside, which will break down to glucose and fructose under biological processes.

3) Insulin is a biologically secreted

To the Daily Egyptian:

Where are the veterans?

Although veterans comprise approximately 10 per cent of the student population of this campus, none of these individuals has sought to comment on the article in the Nov. 22 Daily Egyptian on the veterans' legislation. Granted, the article appeared at a very awkward time and was in vain since the bill in question is now law and the veterans will receive the benefits. Still the article contained some misinformation and was derogatory to the veterans ("free ride to go to school").

Why was there no comment made by so large a group?

How quickly we forget.

hormone which controls sugar digestion, and in no way is contained in glucose. They are two entirely separate entities. Diabetics would be only too happy to learn that sugar contains insulin, since it is a lack of sufficient insulin to digest sugar intake which characterizes diabetes. In short, insulin treatments are used to prevent diabetic seizures—not cause them.

4) Sugar intake alone will not result in gout, diabetes, clogging and hardening of the arteries or heart disease. Numerous, more important factors are involved.

Delsohn should stick to campus political commentary, where non-factual and ludicrous statements are expected.

While many of the students now at SIU were still in high school or were speaking their minds at campus demonstration, many veterans were in a different world known as the Armed Forces of the United States (Army, Navy, etc...). In this world there is very little freedom; you are told not to think, you are subjected to frequent harassment, and you may be punished for speaking your mind.

After having left this ordeal behind, most veterans are seeking to make a life for themselves. In this life they want peace, no orders, and no harassment. Being identified as a veteran is not a major concern in their daily life. Maybe this is why they are silent.

Gary Marx, in his article, got to take his shots at the veterans and their bill. (Certainly they have endured more abuse than this.) and the veterans got their benefits anyway. So why not forget it and look ahead to more important things?

This was not intended to be a soap opera with the veteran as the star, just a brief look at a silent minority.

Inequality in athletics

To the Daily Egyptian:

Bravo from the Feminist Action Coalition! Diane Solberg's effective use of satire in her article on Charlotte West reveals the inequality existing in men and women's athletics.

From Solberg's article it is not hard to believe that SIU has the worst women's athletic program in the state, especially when an injured player must be rushed to the hospital in a car because she isn't "man" enough to be taken in an ambulance! Maybe with a few more Charlotte West's refusing to shut up and a few more Diane Solberg's to bring the problem to our attention we can obtain a fair and equal athletic program for all of our athletes and not just half of them.

Food, toy pickup for poor continues

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

National Guard trucks started picking up canned goods, food items and toys Tuesday for "Operation Merry Christmas," the annual program sponsored by the Police Community Service Center.

Wednesday and Thursday the trucks, donated to the program by the 1244 Transportation Co., will be travelling through the Southwest section of town. Friday they will cover the east side.

Workers on the trucks will be going from door-to-door asking for donations.

Lt. Wayne Booker of the Carbondale police says additional help is needed to man the trucks. He said SIU students and some fraternities are helping this week.

Booker said citizens can call in to get their donations picked up. The phone numbers are 457-4120 or 457-4129. Donations can also be dropped off at the former Paul Simon headquarters at 1198 W. Main.

According to Booker the collected items will be given out next week to persons on relief and the elderly of the community.

"We're starting a little late this year, due to Thanksgiving, and we're getting a slower response. We just didn't start advertising soon enough," Booker said.

Booker also said he wants to remind students about the "Away From Home" forms available at the community service center. These forms will help police watch vacant apartments and houses over the Christmas break.

The lieutenant also said crime deterrent patrols would be doubled during the Christmas break to keep burglaries down.

"We'll be patrolling throughout both the residential and industrial areas," Booker said.

"Schubert's Last Serenade," written by Julie Bovasso and directed by Randy Lockwood explores man's identity in a rigid and structured society that finally must be considered absurd. The play is set in a French restaurant in which the maitre de-narrator presents the story.

"Interview: A Fugue for Actors," written by Jean Claude Van Itallie and directed by Carole Brandt utilizes and illustrates open theater conventions. In the play, the mechanization of present day American life is examined. Four interviewers interrogate four anxious applicants to the point where they cease to be people.

Anti-sniper team ready

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Last summer a squad of armed men rushed into Neely Hall hunting for two snipers. Before the training exercise was over three policemen were declared dead.

These men were in search of a "Fake" sniper in the upper reaches of the nearly deserted dormitory.

When the "sniper" was found, he was a security Police captain, and the mock training exercise for the anti-sniper team was over.

SIU police have the only anti-sniper squad south of Springfield. The squad consists of 12 officers. The extra duty is voluntary.

The squad is the brainchild of Sgt. Bill Barnett. He was talking up the squad in November 1970 when SIU police had a shoot-out with militants.

The idea came to Barnett after the shooting incident in Texas, where a sniper kept a entire campus under fire for hours.

Barnett said the Anti-Sniper squad was adopted in November 1970. It has never been used on campus or Southern Illinois.

The twelve men on the squad are split into two functional units. According to Barnett there are three rifle teams with a rifeman and a spotter in each team. The other part of the squad is an attack team led by Barnett.

"Our first procedure is to communicate with the sniper. Then we get into the building and try to capture the man. This means we have to search the building from floor to floor. Once we have the man cornered, we try to take him alive," Barnett said.

"The only time our sniper teams are used is if the man is firing or if there are a lot of people in what we call the 'kill zone'."

A kill zone is anything within rifle's range.

Barnett said sniper teams are instructed to use controlled fire in order to pin a sniper down.

The team uses bolt action scoped rifles. The team has two .243 caliber rifles and one .270 caliber rifle. The assault team is armed with regular police 12 gauge shotguns and carries tear gas.

"I don't know whether there is another team like this in any university or college," Barnett said. According to Barnett the team receives constant training in the use of tear gas, rifles, shotguns and assault tactics.

Barnett has taken a non-credit course at the FBI academy in assault tactics. He also passes all available literature on to the team.

Barnett is a qualified police firearms instructor in the use of pistols. Two members of the team are certified to teach rifle and shotgun use.

A member of the assault team, Patrolman John A. Hudson says "I feel like it's an important part of police work. I also like the adventure, suspense and enthusiasm of the sniper team."

None of the men have undergone psychological tests to get on the squad. All have been interviewed by Barnett and he feels they are mentally capable. He admits a psychological test could be necessary if he didn't know the men applying for the job.

Walker quiet on support in Chicago mayoral race

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker, a frequent critic of Mayor Richard J. Daley, said Tuesday he had made no decision whether to support a candidate in Chicago's Democratic mayoral primary.

Walker said he may endorse no candidate, but rather lend his support to specific issues as they arise in the mayoral campaigns.

Several weeks ago, Walker was reported to be considering possible support of Ald. William Singer, who is among several candidates challenging Daley.

Daley, 72, who underwent surgery for a stroke in May, announced Monday that he will run for an unprecedented sixth four-year term.

Walker said he was leaving his options open to see how the campaign develops.

"The pressing question is what are the programs of each candidate to meet the critical unsolved problems and how effectively each candidate pursues the solutions," said Walker.

"Because the health and future of Chicago vitally affects the health and future of Illinois, I will naturally take an active interest in this election," he said.

Among the issues Walker deemed important in the race are the city's school system, crime, public transportation and the proposed Crosstown Expressway.

He said he will examine each candidate's stance on the issues.

including that of Edward V. Hanrahan, who Walker once refused to support for re-election as state's attorney of Cook County.

After the mayoral primary Feb. 25, Walker said that as a Democrat he will support the party's candidate.

On other subjects, Walker said possible state layoffs and cutbacks were still under study with his Cabinet members and criticized delays in the selection of a chairman for the Regional Transit Authority.

He said if the board is unable to come to agreement on a candidate by January, legislative action might have to be considered.

Flashing signs may be banned

By Robert Mau
Student Writer

Due to the safety hazards created by flashing lights, the Carbondale City Council has considered an ordinance which will outlaw all "flashing, moving and portable signs."

According to a report submitted to the council in Monday night's informal meeting from City Attorney John Womick, such an ordinance "would probably be tested in the courts."

"In order for the ordinance to be valid," the report stated, "the council would have to have a finding that flashing signs created a safety hazard to the citizens of the city."

"This safety hazard," the report continued, "would have to be defined so that citizens of the city would know with certainty, whether they were or were not breaking the law."

James Rayfield of the City Planning Department said there are presently about 150 flashing or moving signs within the city.

The intent of the ordinance, Rayfield said, should be "to remove only the flashing or moving aspects of the sign."

Councilman Archie Jones said it

Wombat introduced to public

BROOKFIELD, (AP)—Aussie the wombat, out of his mother's pouch two months prematurely, made history Tuesday at Brookfield Zoo.

Director Dr. Peter Crowcroft, introducing the thickset, furry little marsupial at a news conference, said it is the first hairy-nosed wombat born in captivity outside its native Australia.

For Crowcroft, it was a great personal moment. Before becoming director of Brookfield Zoo in 1969, he was director of the South Australian Museum, in Adelaide and made a special study of wombats.

"I cut a lot of red tape and had sent to Brookfield Zoo three wombats I had been working with—Gertrude, Vicky and Charlie," Crowcroft related.

"Vicky was not mature, but she and Charlie became sweethearts whereas Gertrude was a loner. It took nearly five years for Charlie and Vicky to produce a little wombat, which, when born, is about the size of a bumble bee."

Aussie nursed in the mother's pouch from late May until last month.

"Then one day we found the little fellow on the ground—out of the pouch about two months too soon," said Crowcroft. "He was scratched up, like Vicky was trying to kick him back into the pouch. He weighed about 23 ounces. We have kept him in an incubator since, hand feeding him a formula something like small human babies get. He now weighs 30 ounces and his health is good, so we thought it was time for his public debut."

Crowcroft said the wombat should be weaned in about 45 days and will start eating hay, alfalfa, corn and vitamin pellets, the same kind as fed race horses. A wombat lives to be 30 years old.

"Little Aussie had to be fed every four or five hours and I looked after him most of the time," said Crowcroft. "It meant that I would get up to give him his 2 a.m. feeding. Well, recently I turned that job over to an assistant."

would be "very hard to determine one sign more hazardous than another. We'll have to deal with each sign separately," Jones said.

Mayor Neal Eckert said all flashing, moving and portable signs should be outlawed. "If we uniformly enforce them (signs), nobody is going to complain too much," Eckert said.

City Manager Carroll Fry recommended that portable signs, and signs proven to be hazardous to traffic, be eliminated.

Councilman Clark Vineyard said "If we're going to do this, let's do the whole thing and get rid of all of them." Vineyard added that the council should look for problems of higher priority before passing any ordinance.

Students learn sewing at own pace

Clothing construction students at SIU are learning at their own pace. Instruction modules for each step in garment making—from plain flat seams to zippers have been developed.

Notebooks with detailed explanations and graphic illustrations are supplemented by slides, films and cassettes. A revolving multi-leafed sample board provides examples of various types of seams, hand stitching, buttonholes, interfacing, and pockets, for the student to examine closely.

Planning and developing the new self-paced instruction package has required more than a year, according to Shirley Friend, of the clothing and textiles department and assistant dean of the College of Human Resources. Details have been worked out by instructors in the clothing construction laboratory—Nancy Rabolt last year and Mary Jo Higerson this year—with the cooperation and talents of Jackie Oxford, Learning Resources designer and graphic artist.

Benefits of the new system are numerous, both for the student and the department, Friend said. The students may complete a module as they are able to master it. They have much more flexibility in laboratory hours. They can review a module if they feel it necessary.

Students may set their own goal of competency, Friend said. Some have had sewing in high school or have done home sewing. They may need only a quick review on techniques covered in earlier modules of the program and then can move to more intricate ones. Others may not wish to become so highly skilled but only to learn how to do simple personal sewing.

Family housing council charges mismanagement

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Evergreen Terrace Advisory Council has sent a "position paper" to Housing Director Samuel Rinella and other campus administrators to protest "mismanagement" on the part of University Housing.

Bob Peacock, Terrace resident and building representative on the council, said, "The object is to sit down and negotiate and talk about some of the problems." Peacock said the University has failed to sufficiently respond to invasion of privacy complaints from residents. Evergreen Terrace is a University operated off-campus family housing project.

Peacock said questionnaires were distributed throughout the Terrace and 55 to 70 came back with complaints ranging from a woman breast feeding her baby and looking up and seeing a man "spraying in her bathroom" to one person being gone for a week and returning to find food eaten and a mess left.

Evergreen Terrace residents have complained in the past about invasion of privacy on the part of housing officials.

"They have what they call a 'hidden agenda' where they say they're looking for specific things, but they actually look for anything they want," Zuhair Humadi, Terrace resident told the Daily Egyptian last month.

Humadi said the major problem is "frequent inspection of apartments. They say they give us 24 hours notice, but they don't. They even go to the closets."

Asked for reaction to the protest, Robert Wenc, family housing officer, said "We got the thing a few days ago and aren't sure if it's a position paper put out by the Evergreen Terrace Advisory Council, (ETAC), or by a few individuals."

Wenc said the paper was not signed.

"Until I find out that it (ETAC's position) is, I'm not going to take any action on it," Peacock said the paper is endorsed by the council and went unsigned because of a "problem of communications."

"We drew the letter up and I gave it to a typist with instructions not to send it out until Morris Collier (ETAC chairman) saw it. For some reason, it was sent out before it was supposed to be," Peacock explained. Peacock said Collier will sign it and send another copy out to make it a legal position paper.

Rinella said "We have to meet with the council and study it (the paper) in some detail. There are some things that need to be cleared up."

Rinella said he does not agree with the council's assumption that University officials are not willing to talk with members. "I'd be happy to talk with them. In fact, I encourage it."

Rinella said some of the entrances into apartments allegedly carried out "are necessary to keep up services." Insect spraying, inventories, and maintenance are some examples Rinella said.

Rinella said "The problems are not something that can't be worked out. We will be meeting with these people shortly."

Wenc said he invited the council to meet with him in an informal "workshop" this week at his house to discuss some of the issues, but the session had to be postponed until sometime next month.

Peacock said the council appreciates Wenc's willingness to cooperate but "We have to go higher up." He said the council will meet with Wenc and react accordingly. "If we don't get some action, we'll go right to the top," Peacock said.

New Year's resolution

CHESTER, England (AP)—The Anglican bishop of Chester, the Rt. Rev. Victor Whitley, announced his New Year's resolution Tuesday. He will give up tobacco and alcohol for three months to jid the world's hungry.

The bishop said his no-smoking, no-drinking rule will last from Epiphany to Easter—Jan 6 to March 30. The money saved will be paid into a bank account called the Bishop of Chester E to E Fund. The money will go to needy persons in India, Bangladesh, Africa and South America.

"It is the duty of a leader to set an example and not merely to exhort or demand," the bishop said.

ABA urges Ford to extend clemency

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Bar Association has urged President Ford to extend his clemency offer to draft resisters and deserters beyond the Jan. 31 cutoff date.

The ABA suggested that Sept. 16, 1975 be set as the deadline because, it believes, there has been a lack of understanding and time for many Vietnam war resisters and deserters to take advantage of the clemency program.

The clemency offer was the most difficult step in bringing back those who chose to leave the country because of the war, the ABA's 22-member board of governors said in a statement Tuesday.

"It would be foolish to fail to reap the benefits of this step by ending the program too soon," it said.

The board acts as the ABA's policy-making agency when its house of delegates is not in session.

Those applying for clemency must turn themselves in before the end of January, be willing to serve 24 months of alternate service and acknowledge allegiance to the United States.

"Very few of those draft resisters and deserters who are eligible for the program have taken advantage of it," the ABA said.

It said that since many of these people live outside the United States they don't have easy access to expert legal advice on clemency.

President Ford proclaimed the clemency effort Sept. 17, and the ABA said a one-year program "would be sufficient amount of time in which all of those affected could gather advice and make a thoughtful decision whether to accept President Ford's offer of clemency."

JEWISH CAREERS CONFERENCE

You are cordially invited to attend a conference entitled "Careers in the Jewish Community" to be held in Chicago on Saturday night and Sunday, December 21 and 22. The conference focuses on more than twenty separate careers in the areas of Synagogue, Communal Agencies, Jewish Education and Culture-Media. It is being sponsored jointly by Spertus College and Chicago Jewish Federation's College Age Youth Services (CAYS) and Jewish Vocational Services (JVS). Registration fee is $3.00 to cover the cost of materials and lunch on Sunday. Saturday night activity begins at 8 p.m.

Some sessions are geared to provide informative overviews of career areas; others are planned to explore specific careers in depth. At all sessions professional men and women will represent the careers which are the focus of the conference. The schedule will also allow time to meet and get to know your counterparts on other campuses all over Illinois. In addition, booths will be maintained where information about summer jobs will be available. The site of both the Saturday night and Sunday sessions will be Spertus College and its new location, 618 S. Michigan Ave. Yossi and Noga Weinbaum will be on hand for some enjoyable inter-session activities.

To register for the conference, contact your Hillel Director for a registration form.

Holidays call for safety precautions

In spite of economic gloom, stores are loaded with Christmas merchandise and crowded with shoppers. This also is an appropriate time for reminders that carelessness and thoughtlessness often result in holiday tragedies that take the joy out of Christmas, according to J. J. Paterson, farm safety specialist at SIU.

Fires, dangerous toys, traffic accidents and other mishaps in the home seem to pick up during the holiday season calling for extra alertness about danger areas.

Fire danger points during Christmas holidays in the home are the Christmas tree, the lighting system for the tree and other decorations, the decorative materials, and gift wrappings, some types of gifts, and various practices that create fire hazards.

The Christmas tree and evergreen boughs should be fresh when put in the house. Buy a fresh Christmas tree, even if it must be purchased a week or two before it is mounted and decorated. Cut a short segment from the stem to expose fresh wood and set in a bucket of water outdoors or in an unheated building protected from wind. Or, if possible, visit a tree farm to select and cut the desired tree just before decorating it in the home.

Mount the tree in a sturdy tree stand with a generous water cup, and place away from heat outlets where it will not block exits or be in normal household traffic. Native evergreen trees, such as scotch pine, jack and white pine, normally are resistant to fire as long as the greenery is fresh. Take the tree down as soon as possible after Christmas before it becomes dry and remove from the house along with dry greenery used for decorations.

Check strings of electric lights used in decoration for worn insulation, broken plugs or loose light sockets. Use extension cords sparingly. Use lighting sets that have the Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) label.

Outdoor Christmas lights should be of the type with wiring suited to adverse weather conditions. Metallic-type artificial trees should have indirect lighting without strings of lights which may cause electric shock. Indoor tree and decorative lights should be turned off when leaving the house or retiring at night as a precaution against fires caused by an electrical short.

Bus bill on Senate agenda

Students who reside in on-campus housing will have the use of a bus service to the trains Dec. 18, 19 and 20 if the senate passes a bill labeled LB-27 at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom A.

The bill recommends that $110 be used to "hire one bus to take students from Thompson Point, Materials used for tree and home decorating should be non-combustible for safety, such as those made of glass, asbestos material, ceramics, metal, or other flame resistant substances.

When buying electric toys or small appliances for Christmas gifts, select only those that meet safety standards and carry the UL label. Avoid buying toys with sharp edges, toxic coatings, or small parts that may be pulled or chewed off. The more dangerous gifts, such as chemistry sets, bow and arrow sets, or B-B guns and rifles or shotguns, may only bring grief in the hands of children who are not old enough to use them responsibly.

The time of opening gifts generally is exciting, especially with children present, but the oc-casian also calls for having a waste container handy for the wrappings. Paterson suggests wrappings should be placed in covered trash containers, not burned in the fireplace where the upsurge of fire creates added danger.

Holiday automobile travel requires extra precaution and good defensive driving. Start early enough to allow plenty of time to reach the destination without exceeding speed limits or driving while too tired for alertness. Consider weather forecasts in planning Christmas season travel to avoid being caught on the highway in hazardous driving conditions or becoming stranded in a blizzard.

Persons who remember and follow these safety hints and others should stand a good chance of having a joyous Christmas free of tragedy.

Braless female files complaint

CHICAGO (AP)—A young woman who said she was fired because she refused to wear a brassiere while working on a punch press machine has complained to Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Sheldon Summers, an investigator for the agency, said the woman was 22 years old when officials of a machine shop fired her in 1972.

"They contended that without a bra she presented a health hazard while working on punch presses," said Summers, who would not disclose the complainant's name.

"We are so backlogged with other cases that only recently have we started on investigation into this case and it still is going on. So far we have found little evidence of a health hazard. She is an average sized woman all the way around."

Summers said another case was filed three months ago by a 29-year-old woman who said she was fired after her bosses at a warehouse tried to force her to wear a bra.

"Her job was filling cartons for shipment," said Summers.

"She contended that there was no dress code for male employees and shouldn't be one for her, and that her work did not involve her with the general public. In her complaint she stated, 'I do not think my breasts should be the determining factor in my employment.'"

Calipre Stage schedules play tryouts

Tenant union offers helping hand

By Diane Solberg
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Before signing lease agreements for spring semester, students are urged to have Student Tenant Union (STU) "lease counselors" check the agreements.

Gretchen Myers, student tenant union worker, said that because of the "high turnover in housing" between terms, students should seek lease counseling immediately.

The STU, located at 611 S. Washington, is an organization offering counseling on tenant-landlord problems.

Myers said that before a student "enters into a written or verbal agreement we encourage students to come" to check the rights of tenants.

According to Mike Jenkins, a law student and counseling director for the STU, "Often the landlord will have his tenants bound to a lease that denies the rights we usually take for granted, and no amount of intervention will help those tenants."

The STU encourages tenants to negotiate contracts, Jenkins said.

He said, for instance, "Who pays for repairs? If an act of God poses a basketball size hole over your bed, will the landlord pay or will the tenant get soaked?"

He added, "Some Carbondale landlords are genuine rip-off artists. Most are not. They simply went to their lawyer, asked for a lease and most cases got a form lease that was written in their favor."

Jenkins said tenants should get all agreements in writing.

He added, agreements are hard to prove."

"Before you move in, get a list of all the things wrong, and then get the landlord to sign the list. This way the landlord cannot charge you for pre-existing damages," he said.

"The STU has a checklist students can use for checking damages," Jenkins said.

He said if the landlord refuses to sign the list, "have a witness go through the lease with you, and then both of you sign the list in the presence of a notary public. There is a free notary public on the third floor of the STU."

Jenkins said, "Some particularly obscene leases contain either a confession of judgment clause or a clause releasing the landlord from liability. You needn't worry about the second because it isn't enforceable in Illinois, even if the rest of the lease is."

"A confession of judgment clause, however allows the landlord to take you to court if you have violated the lease in any way, and to obtain a judgment against you. You confess by signing on the line."

He added that in some cases the tenant will have to pay his landlords "attorney's costs."

He said if the tenant must pay utilities, "then you should find out from the former tenant or the utility company whether you can afford not having storm windows."

He said other things to look for in the contract are: What is the security deposit, and the conditions for its return?

"What is the rent and when is it due?"

"What is the duration of the lease?"

Jenkins said the tenant should check "under what conditions the landlord may enter. If the lease gives him free access rights, then negotiate."

Jenkins said, "In the tenant unions' experience, almost all landlord-tenant problems arise from a misunderstanding under the lease. Get a fair lease, and the chances are good you'll get a fair landlord, because that lease binds the landlord as much as it does you."

Jenkins said if a student cannot consult an attorney the tenant union offers free advice. The phone number is 453-5152.

The STU is distributing a blue flyer listing some of the tenants' rights. They are available at the STU.

Still photo project features prep life

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Andrew Piper, a junior from Murphysboro, spent all semester making a photo documentary of his old high school. But he had to go to Massachusetts to do it.

Piper, a still photography major at SIU, received his high school diploma two years ago from Phillips Academy in Andover, Massachusetts.

Phillips Academy is a private men's prep school founded in 1778 by Samuel Phillips. The school's ivy-covered buildings are scattered over a 1,000 acre campus 25 miles from Boston.

A large percentage of the school's graduates go on to attend Ivy League universities in the East. From a class of 300 who graduated in 1974, 50 were accepted by Harvard, Piper said.

Piper described his documentary as a photographic essay that shows the daily experiences of academy students. The essay includes scenes of dorm life, classrooms, sports events, the physical "look" of the campus and social activities. In all, Piper took 1,150 different shots of the Academy.

Piper was given 12 hours credit for doing the documentary as a President Scholars Independent Project. William Horrel, professor in the Department of Cinema and Photography is his faculty advisor for the project. "I received excellent cooperation from the administrators of the academy," Piper said. "He was given a dormitory room and board, use of the school's dark room and free run of the campus. In return, the school has the right to use his photos for brochures and other school publications."

Some of Piper's former teachers invited him to sit in on their classes and take pictures. "My old photography teacher used examples of my photos for class demonstrations," Piper said.

Piper noticed many changes when he returned to the school this fall. He found that the former all-male school had become co-educational. During the 73-74 school year, Phillips Academy merged with Abbot Academy, a neighboring prep school for women.

The freshman initiation activities had also changed. At one time the initiation included an average amount of hazing that was unsanctioned by the school, Piper said. When the academy became co-educational, the initiation was toned down by school officials. It was replaced by a school-sponsored week of new student orientation and outdoor recreation.

Piper said the students were more interested in science and other technical subjects than they were a few years ago. He attributed this difference to changes in the job market.

Due to the present economic situation the academy students come from richer families, Piper noted. Since returning to SIU at the end of November Piper has been selecting and editing 100 of the best photos to turn in for a grade.

He plans to organize the pictures in the form of an extended magazine article. He also plans to include a written essay to accompany the presentation.

Males develop feminine breast from smoking pot

BOSTON (AP) — Men may develop fully feminine breasts from heavy marijuana smoking, say two Harvard Medical School surgeons.

The surgeons said they are treating and studying 16 males whose breast enlargement apparently is related to smoking marijuana. They said it probably affects both sexes.

"This effect seems to occur in only a small percentage of people who use the drug," said Drs. John Harmon, chief surgical resident at New England Deaconess Hospital, and Menelaos Aliapoulos, a surgeon at Cambridge Hospital.

"It's like digitalis a heart muscle stimulant which causes breast enlargement in a very few patients who take it," they said.

"So, if a woman smoked marijuana, even heavily, she might have one chance in 100 say, of increasing her breast size," they said.

World famous Luboff Choir will appear at Arena Sunday

The world renowned Norman Luboff Choir will brighten the Southern Illinois Christmas season with an appearance at 7 p.m., Sunday in the SIU Arena.

The choir, which has been in existence since 1963, includes over 30 singers and instrumentalists. Performing everything from Bach chorals to international folk songs to the Beatles, the group has recorded over 50 albums.

Director Norman Luboff began his career in college where he studied under composer Leo Sowerby. Since then, he has become one of this country's most sought after composers. Luboff has worked on radio, for top television shows, and has composed scores for over 80 motion pictures.

Tickets for the Norman Luboff Choir concert are $3.50, $4. and $4.50. Those under 16 can attend for half price. Groups of 20 to 50 persons will receive a $1 discount on all ticket prices. Groups of 51 to 250 persons will receive a $1.50 discount, and groups of more than 250 persons will receive a $2 discount. Those under 16 also qualify for half-price on group rates.

Tickets are available at the Central Ticket Office in the Student Center, the Arena, the STC Student Center, Penny's, Sav-Mart and Tempo.

Paris studies inspire exhibit of art works

Works of 10 art students who studied in Paris last winter quarter will be on display in the Student Center's Saline and Missouri Rooms until Thursday at 10 p.m.

Herman Lugge, of the Student Government Activities Committee said the art works were a "result of stimulus received from a workshop" in Paris.

Lugge said two art students, James S. Rousonelos and Rod Nichols, organized the exhibit for a new display series which Lugge is initiating in the center.

Lugge said he is asking departments to contribute displays for visitors in the center

STC programs relate to environment

Upcoming changes in the construction technology programs at the School of Technical Careers will better prepare students to deal with problems relating to the environment according to Harry R. Soderstrom, chairman of Applied Technology.

Soderstrom recently outlined the programs of construction technology, civil and building, as well as the applied technology division structure and his role within it.

Recent reorganization has placed within the division the following six programs: media technology, tool and manufacturing technology, commercial graphics design, automotive technology, civil and building and construction technology.

Soderstrom sees his role as a "coordinating effort" between students, staff, and course programs. Among other duties, he has responsibility for approving schedules, and some fiscal responsibilities.

Construction technology-civil "prepares technicians to enter the field of civil engineering," said Soderstrom. This may involve the planning of houses, roads, bridges, "site work of various sorts on a large scale."

Soderstrom said the civil student will take a lot more survey courses. He will then take the data from class instruction and make a layout, he added. "When is a roadbed prepared adequately to put a highway over?" Soderstrom posed as a typical question a civil student may be concerned with.

The construction technology-building program is more involved with the actual structure of buildings, said Soderstrom. Here the concern is more with the selection of tools, "more involved with the nuts and bolts of the building," he said. A greater emphasis is put on the drafting aspect, which is concerned with the actual drawings, he added.

The building curriculum is aimed at giving students actual building practice, instead of teaching theory, said Soderstrom. "The program is not quite as theoretical as civil, which is engineering oriented."

Soderstrom mentioned the future direction of the two programs. He said a major emphasis will be giving increased attention toward the environment. He said this will include efforts toward the redemption of waste land. Increasing effort is being made toward "bringing back into function something that was waste before," he said, and the scope of the program will lean more toward this approach.

Another area of greater involvement in the future will be that of water treatment services, he said.

Giving students a "broader base that will provide more opportunities—a more flexible base" is a constant aim of the program, he said. He mentioned also that more supervisory courses may be offered in the future, in keeping with this trend.

The "hard" technology programs—automotive, tool and manufacturing and the two construction technologies, will be housed together in one of the new buildings planned for construction on the Carbondale campus, he added.

Eventually the entire STC complex will be located on the main campus.

Students win with wheelchair design

By Laura Coleman

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If SIU students start seeing wheelchairs gliding around campus that look like they were made backwards, they needn't worry about their sanity.

A group of six students in a beginning engineering class won the top prize in an intra-class competition for designing a product "that will benefit mankind."

The students call themselves the "6-M Corp.," and are members of Engineering 100, designed a wheelchair.

The students call themselves the "6-M Corp.," and are members of Engineering 100. They designed a wheelchair which has the large wheels in front, which they said will enable it to move more swiftly.

Roy Wroblewski, "chief engineer" for the project, said the group designed the wheelchair because present ones are "highly expensive have poor reliability, undesirably slow speed, and poor maneuverability in tight spots."

Wroblewski gave an oral presentation of the project before three judges and members of the class Tuesday afternoon. His group's project was one of those judged in preliminary competition Monday as one of the five finalists.

Second place went to the "Unilock, Inc." for a revised bicycle security system. Other finalists were projects involving a wake-up device for people who turn their alarm off and go back to sleep, a new type of bike brake system, and a different type of light system for bikes.

The 6-M Corp. consists of Wroblewski, Barry Cohn, Dave Decho, Scott Jordan, Don Cincanti, and Brady Young. In a 19-page report, they outlined the mechanical and economical factors of their revised wheelchair, and after the oral presentation, answered questions.

In their report, 6-M said their wheelchair is superior to present models because:

—available components are used where possible to reduce cost and facilitate easy repair.

—a single motor used in a unique differential system saves space and money.

—a three battery system allows greater speed and traveling range.

—20-inch front drive wheels used with a durable steering system improves handling.

Compared to the average cost of motorized wheelchairs presently on the market of $700, Wroblewski said the 6-M project would represent a 32 per cent reduction in cost at $457.

Ken Jordan, one of three who team teach the course, said this was the first time the course was offered at SIU. He said the students worked for at least seven weeks on their projects, which included market analysis of them.

Jordan said 14 projects were selected as semi-finalists Monday and were judged by people from the Southern Illinois and Kentucky area.

Judges for the final competition were: Robert Nack, Carbondale, Bob Sell, of the National Transformer Co., Johnson City, and Bob Tulis, of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Paducah, Ky.

Campus Briefs

Douglas B. Carter, chairman of the Geography Department, has accepted a position with the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle, as a professor of geography beginning Jan. 1. Carter has been at SIU since 1964.

An environmental piece of art consisting of 200 pounds of beef fat and 1,500 pounds of clay entitled "Clay Beuys for Christmas" is on display in the industrial wing of Pulliam in the lecture lab of the ceramics area. The work by Jim Saunders, a graduate student in ceramics, is open to the public 24 hours Tuesday through Thursday.

A supplemental grant of $43,116 has been received by the SIU Rehabilitation Institute to support graduate students in rehabilitation counseling, behavior modification and rehabilitation administration.

Brockman Schumacher, associate professor and coordinator of rehabilitation counselor training has been appointed to a one-year term on the 12-person advisory committee for continuing education in rehabilitation.

The committee will work with the Multi-Resources Center for Continuing Education in Minneapolis to develop and implement staff training programs in management, client services, and para-professional and support personnel.

The Southern Illinois Chapter of the United Nations Association is sponsoring an address by Congressman-elect Paul Simon at 8 p.m. Friday in the Unitarian Meeting House, 301 W. Elm in Carbondale. All interested persons are invited to hear Simon speak on "The Problems of World Hunger."

A Christmas party sponsored by the Harper Squadron of the Arnold Air Society Thursday from 6:30 to 8 p.m. There will be cake, ice cream, songs and a visit from Santa Claus.

Herbert L. Portz of the Department of Plant and Soil Sciences attended the Illinois Turf Conference in Champaign Nov. 20 through 22 and received a $500 grant from the Southern Illinois Golf Course Superintendents Association for turfgrass research.

The Central Illinois Golf Course Superintendents Association presented a $500 scholarship grant to SIU Student John Hawkins during the conference banquet on Nov. 21.

Harry Hoerner and J. J. Paterson of Agricultural Industries will be attending sessions of the annual winter meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in Chicago, Dec. 9 through 12.

The Department of Speech Colloquium will meet on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Center for Advanced Communication Research at 1003 S. Oakland. Professors David Potter and Jan McHughes of the speech department will speak to the question: "Has the SIU Department of Speech a prevailing or directive philosophy?" The colloquium is open to all interested faculty and students.

The SIU Graduate School has announced the availability of the following fellowships:

The Council for European Studies, University of Pittsburgh, is offering fellowships to graduate students in all social sciences and related disciplines to spend a summer in Europe to sharpen needed research skills. Application deadline is Feb. 1.

The Sarah Bradley Tyson Memorial Fellowship is offered to women for advanced study in agriculture, horticulture and allied subjects. Application deadline is April 15.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison is offering fellowships to minority students for graduate study in any field. Deadline for application is Jan. 15.

The Inter-Collegiate Studies Institute is offering the Richard M. Weaver Fellowships for graduate study in any field for the purpose of teaching at the college level. Application deadline is Jan. 15. Further information concerning these fellowships is available from Helen Vergette, Room B230 Woody Hall.

Christmas play set

The Southern Players will present an old-fashioned traditional Christmas tale, "Santa's Christmas Nap" this week in the University Theater of the Communications Building.

Written by Kim Brewster, the play is scheduled for performances at 1:30 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday. Admission is 75 cents. The Wednesday and Thursday performances are already sold out.

"Santa's Christmas Nap" centers around the fate of a toy ballerina who can move just like a real person. The toy is stolen from Santa as he naps at his last stop on Christmas Eve.

The thieves, evil toy maker Harry Hiss and his bumbling henchman, Thug, steal the doll.

The efforts to foul the villains made by the dolls make up the action of the play. Ticket arrangements for groups can be made at the Theater Box Office in the Communications Building or by phoning the box office at 453-5749.

Summer jobs for students offered by Civil Service

By Jerie Jayne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For students who don't want to go to summer school, but find it impossible to line up a summer job, the U.S. Civil Service offers summer jobs with federal agencies.

La Chenoweth, a placement consultant for SIU's Career Planning Placement Center, said the key to getting a summer job with a federal agency is to apply early.

"These jobs could be a stepping stone to a federal service career. You can see what interests you, and the people in the agency can also get to know you," he said.

There are five groups to which students can apply. Group 1 offers about 2,000 sub-professional jobs, 5,000 typist and stenographer jobs and 3,000 jobs in administrative and office positions.

Group 2 requires college study or experience in the fields. Students can work under different federal agencies providing they have the training the job in the agency requires.

Group 3 requires a bachelor's degree and involve professional and administrative duties. Jobs in this area are also available in a number of federal agencies.

Group 4 is for trades and labor workers. No particular education or experience is required for labor jobs. Trade jobs require some experience in the area.

Group 5 includes work-study programs with federal agencies. These jobs are not temporary summer jobs. Students work for the agency during the summer and attend school during the academic year and return to their job the next summer. Students are advanced to professional positions upon graduation. Group 5 also includes summer employment for needy students and intern programs.

Chenoweth said the work-study program is now being organized under the Career Planning and Placement Center. Before, they were organized under the various departments on campus.

"It's a tremendous opportunity. You learn and earn at the same time. It's important to know how to apply training to the specifics of the job," he said.

Chenoweth said the office will remain flexible by meeting the individual needs of the students and industry.

Bus on schedule; to start running Feb. 3

By Lenore Sobota
Student Writer

SIU Travel Service is still in the process of setting up the intercampus bus from East Campus to the Health Service, but it will be ready to begin operation as scheduled Feb. 3 according to the manager of Travel Service.

"We have to hire some more drivers, probably five or six. We already have the buses," said Harry Wirth, manager of Travel Service.

Wirth is presently talking with A. B. Muffin, director of University Graphics, to have signs designed for the bus stops.

The bus will pick up and discharge passengers at East Campus, Evergreen Terrace, Southern Hills, Thompson Point, the Student Center and Health Service free of charge.

"It's a good route. It should serve anyone who needs to get to the Health Service and let them get back in a minimal amount of time," said Wirth.

"It will also allow people from Thompson Point and the Student Center to ride to the STC bus stop at Brush Towers. This is not its primary purpose but it is a secondary purpose," he said.

The drivers of the buses will keep a close count of the number of people getting on and off the bus at each stop according to Wirth. This information will be used to assess whether all the stops will be retained after the four-week experimental period.

Travel Service will use the passenger counts to decide on the size of the bus necessary to adequately serve the needs of the people using the route.

The information will be provided each week to Bruce Swinburne, dean of students, and Sam McVay, administrative director of Health Service, who are funding the experimental bus, "to give them some idea of where their money is going," said Wirth.

Passenger counts are taken on the buses to and from STC but only of the number of people getting on the bus.

"We do keep passenger counts on all the buses we run but not this complex. There are only two or three stops on the STC route and the people ride the STC bus for one reason. The people who use the Health Service bus could ride this bus for other reasons.

"We need to know where people are getting on and off. McVay needs to know if people are using it to get to Health Service," Wirth explained.

STC bus runs altered during final exam week

The schedule for the intercampus bus to the School of Technical Careers has been changed to accommodate students during exam week.

Special runs have been added on Saturday. Monday and Tuesday for students who have final exams on those days. A bus will leave from the Carbondale stop at 9:40 a.m. on Saturday and will leave STC at 12:40 p.m.

On Monday and Tuesday there will be a bus leaving Carbondale at 5:20 p.m. for STC and leaving STC for the return trip at 8 p.m.

The 6:30 p.m. run from Carbondale to STC and the 7 p.m. run from STC back to Carbondale will be discontinued for the week of Dec. 16 to Dec. 20.

African power shifts hands

By William L. Ryan
AP Special Correspondent

Events seem to be closing in on the whites in Rhodesia and South Africa, as if an African version of the domino theory were at work today toward the eventual final end of the "white man's burden" on the Dark Continent.

It may take time before centuries-long white domination over the continent ends, but the current is strong and may prove irresistible in the long run.

What began as a landslide of independence in the 1960's has gathered such momentum that it reached the proportions of an avalanche, all but burying white colonial rule.

Portugal, which had five centuries of uninterrupted rule over vast African areas, is finished now and there's not much white supremacy left.

Remaining in ruling capacity thereafter will be about four million whites in South Africa, about 18 per cent of that nation's population, and a tiny minority of 250,000 in Rhodesia, only 4 per cent of it's people.

For the Rhodesian regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith, things already look desperate.

So long as there was friendly Portuguese rule in Mozambique to the east and the regime of Prime Minister John Vorster to the south, it had seemed safe enough for Smith to defy his innumerable critics.

But within six months or so, the Mozambique government will become unfriendly. The Portuguese will leave and Frelimo, the guerrilla organization that fought white rule for years, will take over under independence. There goes the railroad on the Indian Ocean upon which Smith's landlocked economy has relied.

To the south, Vorster seems primarily interested in Vorster right now and in salvaging whatever is salvageable. That means the South African government cannot be expected for long to continue to be a prop under Smith.

Already there are signs that Vorster's government is ready to offer some significant relaxation of the apartheid policy of strict segregation of races that had seemed to unalterably entrenched. As for his white colleague in Rhodesia, unless Smith himself can salvage something through concessions, he is unlikely to get much more direct help from South Africa. Vorster seems to have made it clear he hopes to be able to do business with a stable black government in Rhodesia and that he would probably find it preferable to an unstable white one.

For the Rhodesian white regime, then, the handwriting may already be on the wall. Should it crumble, South Africa will be all alone, and perhaps its days, too, may seem numbered.

Bifocal or single vision contact lenses can be fitted now with the aid of a computer. Bifocal lens has no segment or line to distort the vision and looks like a single vision lens.

With the use of a PhotoElectric Keratometer called PEK Mark III, a photograph of the eye is made. The photo, along with the prescription is sent to the Visual Data Center in Chicago where they are put into a computer. The computer calculates the structure, size, tear layer and the RX required.

The advantage of the lens is usually more comfort and longer initial wearing time.

Musical drama set for Calipre

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The romantic musical drama, "110 in the Shade," will be presented this weekend in the Calipre Stage.

The musical is based upon Richard Nash's play "The Rainmaker," that was originally produced in 1950. Several years later Nash collaborated with the song-writing team Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt to produce the musical version of the play.

Tom Shepard, director of the show, said the drama is not a splashy musical but a heart warming show with a simple message. Shepard, a graduate assistant in music, is doing the musical as his thesis production for his degree in Opera-Music Theater.

The story takes place on one day in a fictional western town called Three Points. The town is plagued by a seemingly endless drought. The show's central character is Lizzie Curry, played by Jeanne Drakulich, a young woman who has enjoyed everything in life but love. She is as thirsty for her first love as the townspeople are for water.

Starbuck, an itinerant con man, arrives on the scene and convinces the town fathers that he can produce rain for a cool $400. Starbuck, played by Tom Shepard, is also the answer to Lizzie's prayers. He takes an interest in her and provides the love she has longed for.

Although many mysterious events occur, Shepard feels that the musical is basically realistic.

He attributes the peculiar actions of the character to the severity of the drought. Such "magic" could not have taken place in any other setting but this, Shepard said.

Though the show has a make-believe story, Shepard has staged it as realistically as possible. He has directed a great deal of movement for the actors. Choreographer Vicky Meis, has created many lively dance numbers to accompany the songs in the show.

The setting, costumes and lighting are also realistic.

The primary set, a city park in Three Points, has been created in detail including park benches and trees. This is a departure from other Calipre productions in which sets are kept to a minimum because of the small size of the stage, Shepard said.

The songs in the musical blend very well with the dramatic action, Shepard said. Some of the lyrics are taken directly from Nash's original script. Song writers Jones and Schmidt, who are also responsible for the hit, "The Fantastics" are adept at integrating music with plot, Shepard said.

The show has many songs written in a vast range of styles. It has everything from song and dance numbers such as "Poker Polka" and "Everything Beautiful" to Lizzie's sad ballad, "Old Maid." Starbuck sings an impassioned number full of revival-like excitement called, "Rainsong." The singers will be accompanied by two pianists.

Other lead characters are Lizzie's father, played by John Hodgen and Lizzie's two brothers, played by Wayne Worley and Tom Eichelberger. Also in the cast are Romeo Cecilia, Shelagh Kane, Mary Chancey, Leanne Dahl, Frank Juro, David McCracken, JoAnne Hawkins, Jane Natal, Scott Sims and Pam Thompson.

"110 in the Shade" will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 and reservations can be made by calling 453-2291.

Student finds no fault in tennis

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Dave Nitz vs. George Wallace? Maybe. No, not for presidential candidate in 1976. In a tennis game. But George Wallace gets around in a wheelchair these days. So does Dave Nitz.

Nitz, a senior in psychology at SIU, spent several Friday afternoons during the fall semester learning to play tennis, despite his handicap. According to a national magazine article which appeared recently, the Alabama governor has tried it, too.

"We were practicing tennis last Friday afternoon, and Dave yelled out, 'Hey, I read where George Wallace plays tennis!'" explained

Mike Sanders, a junior who taught Nitz the game as a project in a class called Physical Education for Atypical Students. "I told him he ought to write and challenge him."

Nitz just smiles and says, "I don't know," when asked if he'd like to challenge Wallace. It's obvious the idea intrigues him.

A high-80's scorer in bowling, the Joliet, Ill., native has found tennis an altogether different challenge.

"Tennis is kind of fun, because it requires finesse," he said. "I find my hand-and-eye coordination improving gradually, and it's noticeable in other areas besides tennis."

Nitz was confined to a wheelchair at age "16 or 17" due to difficulties arising from multiple sclerosis. Laid up in bed for a month with a bad back, he found his muscles atrophying worse because of the disease.

Unable to step on his left leg, Nitz could only return to school if he used a wheelchair. While it did not disturb his schooling (he will enter graduate school at SIU in January in rehabilitation counseling), it certainly seemed to put such activities as tennis out of the picture. Sanders felt otherwise when the idea arose this fall. Despite the doubts of both the course instructor and Nitz, the former Springfield, Ill., prep golfer proved it could be done.

"It was the first time I had ever heard of such a thing," Nitz recalled. "I didn't think I was even going to try it. When I got out on the court the first time, I was scared."

"At first, he wasn't even hitting one-third of the balls," Sanders said. "I was hoping to start with one-third and reach 50 per cent. Now, though, he hardly ever misses."

"We mainly just work on strokes and I try to hit the ball right at him. Once in a while, I purposely hit it to the side of him to make him move."

At first, practice was a grind for both, as Sanders three hit the ball across the net and Nitz tried to hit it back. The outlook changed, though, when the latter got an opportunity to serve, and the former sharpened his game by returning leg shots.

"I told him to hustle and hit it back to make it worthwhile," Nitz said. "At first, I hit it to the same spot all the time, but now I spray it around, which makes him work."

In return, Sanders demands hustle from his counterpart. He hits high lobs which chase his student all over the court, besides giving him "fits" trying to judge them. Recently, Nitz fell out of his wheelchair while lunging for the ball after a long run. "He was impressed," he said, laughingly, of his teacher.

As always, the student's interest in his lessons has increased his teacher's enthusiasm.

"I used to give him drills to do at home, and I could tell he was doing them," Sanders recalled. "He never watched tennis on TV before, either, but now he does."

Nitz, who works out in physical therapy every weekday morning to build up his leg muscles, has felt a noticeable difference in his arm strength from playing tennis.

Whereas his arms ached after the first practice, the hour-long workouts of rolling his wheelchair with his left hand and swinging the racket with his right no longer wear him out.

"I give him a whole box of balls and let him serve them," Sanders remarked. "He never gets tired."

With winter approaching, the two have wound up their tennis playing for the year, but Sanders has invited his sparring partner to some once-a-week games next spring.

"We've really become close friends," said Sanders, who hopes to plan a golf tournament in Springfield next summer to raise money for the March of Dimes. "Class will end at Christmas, but our tennis will continue after that."

Will Nitz ever get the opportunity to play tennis without his wheelchair?

"Good question," he answered. "I must have asked that question 100 times myself. There is no way of knowing whether I'll progress or regress."

"If I could and ever do get a chance, I will play."

NFL ponders matchups

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that the National Football League knows which eight teams will be in its playoffs beginning Saturday, Dec. 21, the next question is what the matchups will be.

The last vacant playoff berth was nailed down Monday night by Washington when the Redskins victory over Los Angeles ended the slim National Conference hopes of the Dallas Cowboys and Detroit Lions.

The Redskins join St. Louis, Minnesota and Los Angeles in the NFC playoffs with Oakland, Miami, Buffalo and Pittsburgh set for the AFC's post-season action.

In the AFC, Oakland, the West Division champion, will host East rival Miami on Dec. 21 and Buffalo, the wild card team, will be at Central champion Pittsburgh the next day.

The NFC picture isn't quite as simple. Minnesota, the Central champion, will be at home on Dec. 21 and West champion Los Angeles, will be at home the next day.

The missing NFC detail at the moment is just where Washington and St. Louis will play. The two teams are tied for the East Division lead with 9-4 records with one left in the season. Washington plays Chicago and St. Louis hosts the New York Giants Sunday.

Under the NFL's tie-breaking formula, if the Cardinals beat the Giants they will win the division no matter what the Redskins do against Chicago because St. Louis beat Washington in their two meetings this season.

The East champions will play at Minnesota while the other East playoff club becomes the wild-card team and opens in Los Angeles.

All four first-round playoff games will be nationally televised with doubleheaders both days. The winners advance to conference championship games scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 29.

Joe C. and C.J. in tall battle

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Rough and tough is one way to describe the Michigan Wolverines. The Salukis entertain the defending Big Ten basketball champions at 7:35 p.m. Wednesday in the Arena.

Saturday, nationally ranked Michigan upped its record to 2-0 by defeating Tennessee 78-74 in a rough battle. The second half almost broke into a brawl, as Michigan's big man, 6-8 C.J. Kupec from Oak Lawn, and Tennessee freshman Bernard King went at it under the boards.

"You shouldn't have to play that hard in a non-conference game," Michigan coach John Orr remarked after Saturday's game.

The Salukis will be looking for revenge when they tip-off against the Wolverines. Last year, Michigan defeated SIU in the season opener for both teams, 86-74, in Ann Arbor.

"We owe them something for last year," SIU's Joe Meriweather commented before practice Tuesday.

SIU coach Paul Lambert expects a physical game against the Wolverines. "Anytime you play against a Big Ten team, you better expect a very physical team," Lambert said.

Meriweather and Kupec should be a classic match-up Wednesday. "It's just going to be me and him," big Joe remarked.

Kupec, who lead Oak Lawn High School to a second place finish in the Illinois High School Basketball playoffs in 1971, averaged 13 points a game last season, second only to Campy Russell, who is now playing for the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Kupec adds muscle in the middle and can hit from the outside when called upon. "They'll probably bring Kupec outside like they did last year," Lambert said.

Michigan will use a high post offense attack and a man to man defense.

"Michigan will probably try to press us full court sometime during the game," Lambert said. The Salukis showed that they can break a press Saturday night when Vanderbilt opened the game pressing full court. After the Salukis broke the press several times, Vanderbilt moved back to half-court.

"The secret to Wednesday's game will be on the backboards, and if we can handle their defensive press," Lambert said.

Joining Kupec in the front court will be 6-2 Wayman Britt and 6-5 Rick White. Against Tennessee Britt pumped in 24, tops for the Wolverines, while White hit nine.

Michigan's greatest strength is at guard, where playmaker Joe Johnson and 6-2 Steve Grote, return from last season's 22-5 squad.

Even though Michigan is Michigan, Lambert feels that Wednesday's ball game is just one "of the big games on the hit parade of Saluki ball games."

Lambert is hoping that a big crowd turns out for Wednesday's game.

"We're going to need 10,000 people out there, raising hell," Lambert smiled. "You can't imagine what a big difference a big crowd can make on a ball club."

"I saw it last weekend down at Vanderbilt. Everytime Virginia Tech would get close to Vanderbilt in Friday's game, the crowd would start yelling and wouldn't let Virginia Tech come back."

Tickets for the Michigan game can be purchased at the SIU ticket office in the Arena from 1-4 p.m., or before Wednesday's game.

SIU backers learn South's true nature

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Cheering and winning are two categories visiting teams at the Vanderbilt Classic have a hard time controlling.

The Vanderbilt Commodores carried off their 10th tourney crown in 12 years Saturday night by defeating the Salukis, but a bus load of Saluki supporters who traveled to Nashville, Tenn., found out what "southern hospitality really means."

"Go SIU, Beat Vandy," a bed sheet banner, complements of the Holiday Inn, urged, as it hung from the first balcony of the Vanderbilt "pit."

Seconds after the banner was spotted by the home town crowd, a brave group of southern gents removed it from sight and tossed it to a group of Commodore supporters.

From then on in, SIU supporters had a feeling that it would be a long night.

A various assortment of basketball boosters left Carbondale Friday morning for the home of Country Music. After several hours on the road, it was easy to spot the card sharks, quiet supporters, and cheerleaders on the bus.

Against Austin Peay, SIU's cheering section had a hard time being heard over several thousand Governor fans who made the 50-mile trip from Clarksville, to view their heroes.

A 79-70 victory over Austin Peay sent SIU's followers happily back to their Holiday Inn headquarters where the celebration began. While several people traveled to Nashville's "Printers Alley," many stayed behind at the hotel, where they were entertained by several surprise acts.

After a 3 a.m. cheerleading exhibition on the fifth floor of the Holiday Inn, the SIU contingent called it a day and dreamed of the championship game Saturday against Vanderbilt.

Saturday night brought several other Saluki fans, who traveled the long, winding road to Nashville when they heard the maroon and white would be playing for the championship.

Paul Lambert's crew was greeted with a loud chorus of boo's when they entered the Arena for pre-game practice.

SIU's cheerleaders and pom-pom squad traveled to Nashville to lend their support; however, they could hardly be heard over the 11,100 Vandy supporters.

The Saluki cheerleading squad was asked several times by tournament officials to stop cheering in front of the crowd. As it stood, SIU's cheerleading squad was supposed to cheer behind the team, located at the far end of the court.

Defeat dampened the spirit of SIU's followers for only a few hours, then the partying continued with several personalities teaching the newest dance in town, "The Bump."

The trip back to Carbondale was an interesting one. While the front of the bus attempted to recover from the weekend, several older gentlemen continued to teach "the college kids" the art of playing cards.

New York mayor honors Ali

NEW YORK (AP) — The banner in front of a Brooklyn public school read: "PS 137 Welcomes The People's Choice," and on Monday, Muhammad Ali was the choice of all of New York.

It was Muhammad Ali Day in the big city, and Mayor Abraham D. Beame gave the world heavyweight champion the bronze medallion, the city's highest civic award.

It was a day of cheers for Ali as he rode in a motorcade through Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx.

It was a day when he was serenaded by a jail house rock band on Riker's Island, playing an original composition called "The Singin' Man," while about 800 prisoners cheered, "Ali, Ali."

It was also a big day for the city's children as Ali stopped at several schools.

Ali's citywide tour also took him to Chinatown and to Muhammad's Temple of Islam in Harlem. Ali is a Black Muslim.

The champion was no bigger of a hit anywhere in the city than he was at Riker's Island, where he talked to an auditorium full of youthful offenders.

"I want to thank all of you for coming here today and for showing up," said Ali.

The champion's greeting drew laughter from the prisoners.

"You couldn't give me $10 million to spend a year in jail," said Ali. "Life's too short to be in a place like this."

"If you have to do time, do the time and say, 'Man, I got a hell of a lesson. I'll never come here anymore.'"
